Hi! I'm Oscar. I want to tell you about the awesome place where I live. I live at Forever Home Feline Ranch. Now, you may be asking yourself, how'd I get so lucky? Well, it's like this: Where I lived before was great, but one of my loving family members developed severe asthma. As you probably know, asthma is bad and sadly, I had to find a new home. My family tried to find me a home, but no one wanted me. Why? Because I am an older guy. I am 14 years old, a senior, if you will. I am one of the lucky ones due to the fact that my family found Forever Home Feline Ranch. I am now what's called a sanctuary cat. My job today is to tell you the difference between a sanctuary cat and an adoptable cat.

A sanctuary cat is usually one that may be older, like me, or may have health issues, and then there are some that simply put, have temperament issues not specific to age. An adoptable cat is one that temporarily stays at the Forever Home Feline Ranch or in a foster home until they find their forever home. I have a forever home with Forever Home Feline Ranch. I will stay here getting lots of love, attention and medical care until I pass over the rainbow bridge. I am forever wanted and loved.

The Forever Home Feline Ranch is an alternative to euthanization for some us, especially for older cats like me and some others at shelter's and pounds who have simply been there too long and overlooked; whose time has run out. We all know what that means.

I have it made here at The Ranch. All of us felines get medical care before coming to live here. We have been spayed or neutered, and we are kept healthy by receiving our vaccinations and treatments for those pesky parasites (I personally hate fleas! They serve no useful purpose, as far as I am concerned.). We are also tested for Feline Leukemia and Feline Immunodeficiency Virus (FIV).

The Ranch hands and volunteers take wonderful care of us here at The Ranch and for those of us in foster care. I've heard them talk about how awesome all the supporters are that help Forever Home Feline Ranch. As the spokes cat, I want to say Thank You. Your generous donations help seniors like me, and all my furry friends here, live out our lives with grace and dignity. You also help support the younger ones, until they get adopted and placed in their forever home. We appreciate having medical care, food, shelter, and clean litter boxes full of litter. This is all thanks to you.

Your friend,

Oscar
